The Award

Since 1999, The Cincinnati Association has annually presented the John E. Pepper Education Community Service Award to an individual who has demonstrated commitment, compassion and perseverance as a volunteer on behalf of public education in Cincinnati. The award was established to honor its first recipient, John E. Pepper, who, in addition to distinguishing himself at the very highest levels of corporate responsibility with the Procter & Gamble Company, selflessly dedicated his own volunteer efforts on behalf of public education in Cincinnati.

The winner of the John E. Pepper Education Community Service Award receives a $500 "stipend" to the charity of the recipient's choice and is honored by The Cincinnati Association at a dinner award meeting.

Eligibility

Any individual performing volunteer work on behalf of public education in Cincinnati may be nominated.

Nomination

1. Nomination may be submitted by anyone other than the nominee.
2. Nomination may be submitted using a Pepper Award Nomination Form, or by providing the same information in written or email form, to the address indicated.
3. Nomination must be submitted to the Secretary prior to the deadline established.

Selection of Award Winner

The Executive Committee of The Cincinnati Association has the sole privilege and responsibility of selecting the winner. The opinions and advice of the respective committees, panels and individual members are considered key factor in this decision.

Selection Criteria

While there are no specific or formal guidelines, the intent is to recognize an individual whose volunteer efforts on behalf of public education in Cincinnati have reflected a substantial personal commitment and have resulted in significant benefits to students and/or long-term improvements in the educational system in Cincinnati. Please be sure to indicate the magnitude of any results and impacts, as well as the visibility of this individual's efforts to the public and those within the public school system. Any exceptional contribution can be recognized, such as a significant individual event or a long-term commitment or involvement, particularly of a selfless and/or community-minded nature.
